

ART at the Airport

The Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and Richmond International Airport have partnered to present a series of original art exhibitions at different locations throughout the airport.

As the largest state art museum in the country, VMFA has worked for over 70 years with organizations around the Commonwealth to share works from its encyclopedic collection of world art and to develop exhibitions that reflect the vigorous art scene in Virginia.

VMFA also supports contemporary artists through its Fellowship Program—the most generous of its kind in the US. Since its inception in 1940 as a privately funded endowment, the program has awarded more than $3.8 million to professional artists as well as art students who demonstrate exceptional creative ability in a particular discipline.

The displays in this location will feature both the work of Fellowship winners and some of the VMFA touring exhibitions that travel to every corner of the state.

This Land is Our Land

Photographs by Hullahen Williams Moore

This exhibition presents a selection of pigment prints by Richmond-based photographer, Hullahen Williams Moore. The artist is a landscape photographer who studied with Ansel Adams, John Sexton and Philip Hyde. Through his work, he seeks to let others know some of the wonder, power, and beauty of the wildness of nature. He concentrates on the national parks, particularly the area in and around the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia.

HULLIHEN WILLIAMS MOORE

American, born 1942

Pigment Prints

Collection of the Artist

1. Big Schloss, Stone Detail and View, 1/15
Big Schloss Area, George Washington National Forest,
Virginia, October 2006
2. Sentinel Rock and Clouds
Yosemite National Park, California, May, 1988
3. Rhododendron and Tall Trees
Garden Mountain Area, Jefferson National Forest,
Virginia, June 2007
4. Appalachian Trail and Mist
Shenandoah National Park, Virginia, October 1994
5. Falling Spring
Allegheny County, Virginia, May 1996
6. False Hellebore, 2/15
Shenandoah National Park, Virginia, April, 1998

This Land is Our Land

Photographs by Hullahen Williams Moore

This exhibition presents a selection of pigment prints by Richmond-based photographer, Hullahen Williams Moore. The artist is a landscape photographer who studied with Ansel Adams, John Sexton and Philip Hyde. Through his work, he seeks to let others know some of the wonder, power, and beauty of the wildness of nature. He concentrates on the national parks, particularly the area in and around the Shenandoah National Park in Virginia.

HULLIHEN WILLIAMS MOORE

American, born 1942

Pigment Prints

Collection of the Artist

7. Tetons, Morning Clouds
Grand Teton National Park, Wyoming, August, 1995
8. El Capitan
Yosemite National Park, California, April, 2004
9. Yellowstone River, After the Fire
Yellowstone National Park, Wyoming, August, 1995
10. Buck Run Trail, Fall
Laurel Fork Area, George Washington National Forest,
Virginia, September, 2006.
11. Big Meadows Pine, Fog, and Ice
Shenandoah National Park, March, 1991
12. Sequoia Remains, Evening Light, 1/15
Stump Meadow, Giant Sequoia National Monument,
California, August, 1998